

GROHE BE0 (Polished Nickel) Update

Please be aware that there are currently availability issues with several GROHE BE0 (Polished Nickel) products in the bath and shower categories.

Next week we will be publishing a detailed list of products impacted by availability as well as a list of products that are still available to order.

We understand the importance of having a variety of finishes available and are working towards improving GROHE's offering from both a short-term and long-term perspective.

Any orders already in the system are being reviewed by Product Marketing to determine the best course of action and Sales Representatives linked to the respective order will be contacted and advised of what the suggested solution is.