VENTILATION: PROFESSIONAL SERIES

Get the Look: 36" Pyramid Style Hood

Choosing the Perfect Range Hood

Everything You Need to Know

1. Select a Hood Style

Classic, Modern, Contemporary, Farmhouse, choose a hood style that fits best fits with your overall kitchen design.

2. Select Hood Width

The hood should be the same width as the cooking appliance below it, or up to 6" wider for maximum capture area.

3. Determine Total Hood Height

Ventilation Hoods should be installed 30" – 36" above the cooktop surface. Duct covers can fill any remaining space that the hood does not. See page 83 to determine if a duct cover is needed based on your ceiling height.

4. Calculate Hood Power Needed

Hood power is based on CFMs. To determine the CFMs needed, add the total BTU's of your cooking appliance (top burners + ovens), then divide by 150.

5. Choose Blower Type

In-hood, In-line and Remote blowers are available from 600 CFM's up to 1,400 CFM's. See page 94 to determine the best blower option for your home.

6. Determine Blower Location

Your hood needs to exhaust through ducting which may be determined by existing ducting or architectural plans for a new build. First decide if this will occur through the top or rear of the hood. Then, install the correct size ducting for the shortest possible distance with the least 90 degree bends possible.

7. Customize Your Kitchen

Choose from over 1,000+ colors, finishes and designer metals. Accent with unlimited strapping configurations.
