

To all F&P Dealers,

FAP Electric Cooktop – the latest production start date I have been advised is the week beginning June 11 from Italy. Allow approximately 6 weeks from start date to when product is received into our warehouse so this puts the market release date as late August. The reason for the delay is continued issues with standards as well as some parts supply issues. I will advise when this product goes into production and in transit.

FAP Induction Cooktop – there is still a number of tests still being under taken. My best guess is this product will be available in the market late this year however there are a number of variables around this which can alter this date. As this becomes clearer I will advise.
